

My Visit to the Norton Simon Museum

Today I am going to the Norton Simon Museum.

My family is coming too.

When we get to the museum, we will have to wait in line for Admissions.

When we are done, we can explore the museum.

There are many rooms, called galleries, in the museum.

There will be paintings on the walls.

And there will be sculptures too.

From all over the world.

There will be lots of people looking at the art.

When I look at art, I will not touch the art.

There will be security guards wearing jackets and ties. They are there to keep the art safe.

In the museum, when I talk about the art with my family, I will talk in a quiet voice.

I will stay with my family and I will walk, not run.

If the galleries get too loud, we can step outside into the garden.
There will be plants, sculptures and a pond.

In the garden there is also a cafe with tables and chairs where we can buy food, sit and look at nature.

I will not have to time to see everything in the museum, but that is OK.

I can come back another time to see more.
