Norton Simon Museum Presents Eternal I Endure

USC School of Dramatic Arts MFA Students, under the direction of Dean David Bridel, perform a movement theater piece inspired by the artwork of Auguste Rodin

WHAT: Performance: Eternal I Endure

To mark the centennial of French sculptor Auguste Rodin's death (1840–1917), the Norton Simon Museum presents a special performance by students from the Master of Fine Arts in Acting at the University of Southern California, directed by USC School of Dramatic Arts Dean David Bridel. Inspired by Rodin's work, the MFA students perform a movement theater piece that weaves together images, text, fragments of the artist's life story and music. This dynamic performance continues a long tradition of the study of Rodin's work in actor training and its value to the physical arts.
